CHIEF MAGISTRATE OTTO KEMPNER DIES

Popular Head of Second Division Courts Succumbs to Cancer.

LONG ACTIVE IN POLITICS

Chief Magistrate Otto Kampner of the Second Division, including Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond, who had been suffering from a cancerous growth in the mouth for nearly a year and underwent several operations and radium treatment, died on Thursday night at his home, 44 Monroe place, Brooklyn. In spite of his affliction he attended to many duties of Monroe place, Brooklyn. In spite of his affliction he attended to many duties of his office and on the second of this month signed the payrolls.

He was born in Austria fifty-six years ago and came to this country with his parents in his boyhood and settled in New York. After passing through a grammar school and taking special lessons at Cooper Institute he secured a position as teacher of English in a German free school on the East Side in 1883 and soon became its principal. He studied law in the New York Law School while teaching and was admitted to the bar in 1884.

He became active in politics and in 1892 ran for the Assembly in the Tenth district as an independent candidate and was elected. He was a persistent foe of Richard Croker and in 1894 published the pamphlet "Boss Croker's Career," which attracted much attention.

When he settled in Brooklyn a few years later he joined the regular Democratic organization and lined up with Senator Pat McCarren in his warfare with Tammany. As president of the German American Citizens League he advocated the nomination of Seth Low for Mayor on a fusion ticket. He served as Assistant Commissioner of Public Works during the administration of Borough President Swanstrom.

In June, 1910, he was appointed Chief Magistrate of the Second Division by Mayor Gaynor, of whom he had been an earnest supporter. He introduced many reforms in the management of the Magistrates' courts and was popular with his associates on the bench and all the court officials.

He belonged to many civic and social organizations, and was a member of Centennial Lodge, F, and A. M. the Martited Chief Description of the Magistrates' courts and was a member of Centennial Lodge, F, and A. M. the
